IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Edna W. Baldwin, who departed this life 25 years ago, Feb. 2.

It was on a Thursday night,
I will never forget the day;
When an angel came and
Took my mother away.
The Golden Gates were open,
A gentle voice said, come,
And with farewells unspoken,
She gently entered home.
Though God has her in His keeping,
I still have her in my heart.
—Sadly missed by, Daughter.

NEGRO EXTENSION NEWS

G. L. James, Farm Agent

The time has again arrived for considering the plantings of crops and gardens. February is the month to really get started; plow your garden at least 30 days before planting; plan your plantings — a well planned garden will permit you to group the early, mid-season and late maturing vegetables. Select disease resistant varieties. Get your seed from reliable dealers. Take advantage of your organic matter — burning the garden area is not recommended. Fertilization is necessary to keep the soil at the required high fertility level. Try taking a soil sample test and from the analysis you will know what kind of soil you are working toward.

On Monday, February 10, two 4-H adult leaders and the Farm Agent will attend a 4- leaders workshop in Buckingham, at Carter G. Woodson High School. The meeting will be supervised by specialist from V. P. I. This is the first meeting of this nature on a local basis, designated to help the local adult leaders with their work with 4-H youth.

We are happy to announce that William Forbes, now a student at Virginia State College, has received a scholarship of $560.00. William was recommended by the Extension Service due to his outstanding 4-H club membership to Pres. Daniels of Virginia State College, who directs the placement of awards to deserving young agricultural students. William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt Forbes, of Hixburg community.

Hixburg community, after having placed 3rd in the state in a community contest sponsored by the Advisory Board, with 520 points, has taken on the project of beautifying their church. The work on the inside has been completed and landscape plans are now being prepared for the lawn and shrub work on the outside. The club voted to use the prize money toward the purchase of a bulletin board to be placed on the front steps of the church. As a demonstration community for the county, Hixburg people have done an excellent job on homebuilding, remodeling, water systems, and appliances within the home.

CAGE LAYERS HAVE BOTH ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES

The pros and cons of whether or not to put layers in cages are still being discussed in Virginia poultry circles.

Poultry specialists at VPI say there is no detailed information on the relative profit of cage and floor layers in Virginia. Several poultrymen in the state have taken the cages out after using them a while. The specialists say that anyone interested should visit some cage installations, and then try a few layers in cages and compare the results with birds on the floor before investing heavily in cages.

Meanwhile, here are some of the advantages claimed for cage layers:

It is easy to get definite information on the egg production of each bird. Slightly less feed is required per dozen eggs. There is uniform yearly production if the cages are kept filled. Lower mortality has been noted. There are no pickouts or cannibalism, but some feather picking may occur. Egg eating is kept at minimum. Parasite troubles are reduced. There are fewer extremely dirty eggs. However, many eggs have two rings of dirt.

On the other hand, there are disadvantages when layers are put in cages. Birds in cages cannot stand very cold and very hot weather as well as birds on the floor. When temperature in the building gets to freezing or below, production is affected. A heater in the winter time and fans in the summer are necessary for best results. More labor is required for cages than with floor birds. Continuous brooding and rearing of pullets is necessary if constant culling is done and the cages are kept filled. Colds seem to be harder to handle when birds are in cages. Treatment for lice and mites is more difficult, and fly control is a very serious problem with cage layers.

WRESTLING BOUTS IN LYNCHBURG

Lynchburg.- The frantic matches and rematches that have kept Dick Steinborn and George Becker defending their Southern tag team wrestling crown against Tom Bradley and a host of his teamsters have left one wrestling team, composed of Doc and Mike Gallagher, pretty much out in the cold in recent weeks.

The Gallagher brothers will get their chance to win the crown at Lynchburg's City Armory on Friday night in a match that will go the regulation two of three falls over the usual full hour's limit.

While numerous opponents have claimed to have found chinks in the Steinborn-Becker team's armor, none have been able to fully capitalize on their discoveries and, as a result, Becker and Steinborn have held their title for an extremely long period of time.

In the semifinal match, Lougi Macera, a big local favorite, who was on the losing team in last week's tag team match, will attempt to pick up his lost prestige when he goes against squat Jim Austen.

Len Rossi meets Boris Melinko in a single fall match.

Respiratory Ills Common Ailment For Ice Cap Team

CHICAGO — A physician who spent 100 days isolated on the Greenland Ice Cap with five other scientists says respiratory ailments were the most common medical problems and aspirin the most frequently used medication.

The most interesting case occured after 40 days of isolation, Dr. Robert W. Christie said.

The expedition leader developed an influenza-like illness three days after the group received an air drop of supplies. The disease apparently was transmitted by the men's personal mail, since all the other materials dropped were handled by the other men, none of whom became ill. There was no evidence of other means of contracting the disease.

In 1955 the scientists traveled almost 1,200 miles (400 miles through unexplored regions) and collected data in the fields of glaciology, geophysics, bacteriology, physiology and mechanical engineering. The temperatures ranged between 31 F and —31 F and the altitude ranged to 12,000 feet.

During the 100 days there were 61 medical visits. None of the diseases were serious and most were treated with relatively common drugs. The ailments included sinusitis, sore throat, common cold, bloody nose, stomach upsets, muscle strain, ingrown toenail, burns, cold sores, headache, motion sickness, frostbite, snow blindness and back strain.

The drugs used included aspirin for headaches and muscle and joint pains; phenylephrine hydrochloride for sinusitis, paregoric for diarrhea, salt water gargle for sore throat; cod liver oil ointment for burns and frostbite, and various antibiotics and sedatives.

New Hunt Is On For Grizzly Bear

BERKELEY, Cal. — A grizzly bear hunt is under way in California for the first time in many years.

Of course the California grizzly has been extinct over 30 years—and these hunters aren't carrying guns—but Drs. Loye Miller and Seth Benson are hunting for specimens of the giant bear, whether they are bear-skin rugs or trophies over the mantlepiece.

Although possessors of old grizzly relics may not realize it, stated the scientists, a well preserved California grizzly specimen is an important zoological find. In spite of the large number of these animals which roamed California in recent times, very few of the giant bears are available for study today.

The zoologists, who recently received a finely preserved grizzly skull some 50 to 100 years old, said parts of less than 70 California grizzlies are known in museums throughout the world now.

Grizzly bears, which once existed over a considerable portion of western North America, are now confined to Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho and parts of Canada, Alaska, and Mexico. The last California grizzly to be seen alive was observed in Sequoia National Park in 1924.

Few Hundred Survivors Of Famous Longhorns

WASHINGTON—The ornery longhorn that built the American cattle kingdom has finally become a national pet.

Sixty years ago, cowboys still roped and branded these badtempered, money-making bovines. Now visitors come to gaze at a few hundred survivors of the breed grazing in private paddocks, game refuges and zoos.

Among the longhorn's distant ancestors were Spanish cattle introduced into Texas in 1690.

Early Lone Star ranchers collected hodgepodge herds liberally laced with this hot Spanish blood. Gradually the longhorn developed. Big-boned and narrow-hipped, cows weighed 1,600 pounds and came in a variety of drab colors, none particularly beautiful. Horns sometimes stretched eight feet from tip to tip, with dagger-sharp points.

Judge Rules That Poker Is Not 'Game of Chance'

BUENOS AIRES—Poker is not a game of chance, an Argentine judge has ruled.

Dr. Jose Maria Ragucci so ruled in ordering freedom for several members of an athletic club who had been arrested on gambling charges.

Said Judge Ragucci: 'The fact that the skill of a player and a technique in eliminating a good deal of the improbable are important factors, and the calculating abilities of the players is a preponderant element of the game, eliminates it from those known as games of chance."

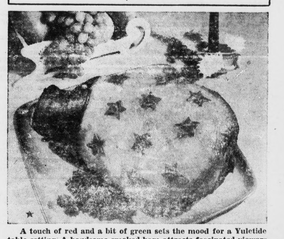
Ham Fancy



A touch of red and a bit of green sets the mood for a Yuletide table setting. A handsome smoked ham attracts fascinated viewers when decked out in its fashionable, festive attire . . . pimiento stars and sprigs of bright green parsley.

There's no need to announce a Christmas dinner. The homemaker will have all she can do to get the festive food array past the admiring glances of the family members and on the table.

Reba Staggs, meat expert, suggests how to prepare a delicious, smoked ham for the holiday feast.

Simply purchase a 12 to 14-pound ham . . . make it a point to plan on leftovers. Leftover ham dishes are numerous and watch the men ask for seconds.

Place the ham, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not add water or cover to the roast. Bake the ham in a 300° F. oven . . . if roasting a fresh pork cut, use a 350° F. oven. Allow 18 to 20 minutes per pound if roasting (baking) a whole ham or 22 to 25 minutes for a half ham.

A decoration or glaze gives this meat cut a "note of distinction." The glaze, either honey, brown sugar or fruit or a combination of these, is applied about 30 minutes before the ham is done. After the glaze is applied, the ham is returned to the 300° F. oven to finishing cooking and to allow the glaze to set. ●
